

Terms & Conditions

RSE Arts & Humanities Research Grants Research Networks, Research Workshops and Small Grants

These are the terms and conditions of the RSE Arts & Humanities Research Grants. All applicants should read these carefully before completing and submitting an application. should be read carefully alongside the guidelines before completing the application form.

INTRODUCTION

- As Scotland's National Academy, the Royal Society of Edinburgh (RSE) combines the roles of the Royal Society of London and the British Academy within a Scottish context. The Society, with support from the Scottish Government and private funding, has for many years supported the sciences by allocating funds for post-doctoral research. It also administers a scheme to fund research in the Arts and Humanities which is supported by the Scottish Government and was launched in 2007.
- Scotland is the home of many distinguished scholars in philosophy, literature, languages, history, theology, law, and in the theory and criticism of the visual and performing arts. There are also many excellent creative artists. In developing an association with scholars, practitioners, and policy makers, and in assisting the promotion of their research, including, as appropriate, its practical application and dissemination, the RSE seeks to enhance its mission 'to promote the Advancement of Learning and Useful Knowledge'. An outline of the full Programme of Awards is given below.

APPLICANT ELIGIBILITY

- The awards are open to applications from Principal Investigators who are one of the following: a full or part-time academic in the arts and humanities employed by a Higher Education Institution in Scotland; a full or part-time practitioner or research-active member of staff in the creative, visual or performing arts employed by a Scottish Cultural Institution with a demonstrable commitment to teaching and research within said institution; or a retired academic in the arts and humanities who retains demonstrable links with a Scottish Higher Education or Cultural Institution.
- Applicants on short or fixed-term contracts should ensure their contracts extend for at least 3 months after the end of the proposed project. Early career researcher on staged contracts to permanent lectureship positions are eligible but must be in contract for the duration of the award.
- Joint applications are accepted for the Workshop and Network schemes where there is evidence of the partners having worked together successfully, bringing individual but complementary skills and experience. Collaborations may be: between Scottish or overseas Higher Education Institutions and/or Cultural Institutions, provided that the lead applicant is based in Scotland and the key principles of the awards scheme are recognised; and interdisciplinary (including beyond the arts and humanities),

PROJECT ELIGIBILITY

- The RSE Arts and Humanities funding remit, in line with the Arts and Humanities Research Council, covers the following research areas: History, Cultures and Heritage – Archaeology, Classics, Cultural and Museum Studies, Development Studies, History, Information and Communication Technologies (where they are applied to the humanities), Law and Legal Studies, Library and Information Studies, Philosophy, Political Science and International Studies, Theology and Divinity and Religion. Creative and Performing Arts – Dance, Design, Drama and Theatre Studies, Media, Music and Visual Arts. Literature and Languages – Languages and Literature and Linguistics. Please visit <https://ahrc.ukri.org/funding/research/subjectcoverage/ahrc-disciplines/> to see a further breakdown of eligible subjects.
- The project proposed should involve research as defined for the Purposes of the Awards. This definition is drawn from the definition employed in the RAE 2008, specifically as it applies to the Arts and Humanities:
- ‘Research’ ...is to be understood as original investigation undertaken in order to gain knowledge and understanding. It includes work of direct relevance to the needs of commerce, industry, and to the public and voluntary sectors; scholarship*; the invention and generation of ideas, images, performances, artefacts including design, where these lead to new or substantially improved insights; and the use of existing knowledge in experimental development to produce new or substantially improved materials, devices, products and processes, including design and construction. It excludes.... the development of teaching materials that do not embody original research.
- Scholarship for the RAE is defined as the creation, development and maintenance of the intellectual infrastructure of subjects and disciplines, in forms such as dictionaries, scholarly editions, catalogues and contributions to major research databases.
- ‘Applied Research’ should be informed by the intellectual structure of scholarly research in the field—applying or exchanging enhanced knowledge, methods, tools, and resources of other types of research and contributing to scholarly research through systematic dissemination of its results. Outputs of Research-as-Practice, Practice-led-Research and Practice-based Research are welcomed, provided that they meet the definition of research as defined above.
- There are three types of Arts and Humanities grants. Applicants may submit only one proposal to each scheme. If an applicant applies to more than one scheme, then the applications must be for different projects. Applicants submitting more than one proposal should ensure that they detail how they will manage their time on all projects if each are successful. Applicants should apply to the scheme best suited to the proposed project.
- Research Networks are designed to create and/or to consolidate collaborative partnerships over a two-year period. ‘Partnerships’ may be defined in a range of ways, and may involve collaboration between colleagues in different disciplines and institutions. The award may be used to expand the activities of existing Research Workshops, or to initiate new projects, although evidence of previous successful collaborative work amongst the participants will be an advantage. Any events organised must be outwith the Society’s and Young Academy’s own programme of meetings.
- Research Workshops are designed to encourage collaborative investigation into a research proposition that is at an early stage of its development. A Workshop is regarded by the RSE as “the coming together of scholars at the early stage of planning and developing a collaborative research initiative.” Please note that this award is to encourage and support a range of colloquia to advance the exploration of the topic, and that a single event sharing completed or advanced research is not eligible under this scheme. Successful completion of the workshop stage will not normally lead to a major grant application, but possibly to a Network application.

- Small Grants are designed to support personally conducted research. They are designed to encourage innovation and to integrate with the overall programme of awards such that successful applications may lead to future bids for Workshop or Network funding, or act as preliminary investigations for Major Research Grants. Small Grants offer an opportunity to scholars in the early stages of their career, part-time academics, and those who have had a family career break.

SELECTION PROCESS

- Applications will be assessed by a peer review panel composed of Fellows of the Royal Society of Edinburgh with specialist expertise in the study and practice of the Arts and Humanities. In the case of an interdisciplinary proposal, or one which falls outside the disciplines represented on the panel, it will seek comments from other Fellows or from external assessors. We usually aim to communicate decisions within 2-3 weeks of the Committee meeting date.

SELECTION CRITERIA

- Applications for Networks and Workshops are assessed against their adherence to the key principles of the RSE Arts & Humanities awards programme: they should be collaborative, resonate with Scottish culture and society, and include plans for dissemination which address both a traditional academic audience and the wider public. It is desirable for the Small Grants scheme to adhere to these key principles but it is not essential.

A percentage of payment may be withheld from the institution if the award holder fails to meet the requirements of the award described in the Terms & Conditions, including meeting the reporting requirements below. In accepting this award, the Host Institution is expected to have in place policies covering misconduct together with procedures that would be applied should the award holder fail to abide by them. This award may be withdrawn should the awardee be found guilty of misconduct or unacceptable behaviour (both personal and work-related).

REPORTING REQUIREMENTS FROM SUCCESSFUL APPLICANTS

- Research Workshops and Small Grants: Within six weeks of the conclusion of the period of the award, the recipient(s) should submit a written report to the RSE peer review panel.

This report must include details of the outputs and outcomes of the award and how they contribute to one or more of the Scottish Government's National Outcomes. A template report form will be provided when the offer of an award is made.

- The host institution must submit a final statement of expenditure to the RSE.
- Research Networks: At the end of year one, an interim report should be submitted to the RSE.
- A final report should be submitted within 3 months of the conclusion of the period of the award. Template report forms will be provided when the offer of an award is made.
- Review of reports
- Reports will be checked for accuracy by officers, and then submitted to the Convener of the panel who, in consultation with relevant colleagues, will comment on the conduct, delivery and impact of the research.
- Should a report not be submitted by the due date, or if it be deemed incomplete or unsatisfactory, the recipient of the award will be invited either to submit it within two weeks or to revise the report in line with the assessors' comments.
- If the report is still not forthcoming, or if the Convener continues to be dissatisfied with the report, the peer review panel will consider what sanctions are appropriate. Sanctions may include:
  - Request for refund of award
  - Letter to head of institution in which the recipient of the award is based
  - Penalty listing of recipient of award
  - Penalty listing of institution at which the recipient is based
